

Pavel Domalewski to reinforce the Cushman & Wakefield team

Author: SF / pb | Published: 03.08.2010

Pavel Domalewski (aged 33) is a new member of the office team at Cushman & Wakefield from 26th July. He starts as the leader of a three-member team, which provides complex service to property developers and property owners in securing lease of office space. Apart from representing the property owners, he will also focus on - with regard to his previous experience - developing relations with bank sector tenants. Pavel Domalewski joins Cushman & Wakefield from Knight Frank, where he worked in the position of a senior negotiator in the office sector.

Domalewski received a master's degree at Charles university, majoring in social geography and regional development. He is currently completing his PhD degree in real estate investment funds. His hobbies include literature, politics, skiing and cycling.
