Real estate company VGP, which focuses on the construction of warehouse and industrial sites, will build an industrial zone near Rajhrad, South Moravia. The news was brought by the newspaper E15. VGP Park Brno will be built on a seven-hectare plot and will consist of four areas. VGP wants to start building already this year, however, they did not disclose if they already have tenants for the buildings. Electrical manufacturing, light engineering and assembly plants will be situated in the zone. The halls will also partially serve as warehouses. South Moravia, with more than 500,000 sqm of halls, is one of the largest areas of logistics site construction in the Czech Republic. The largest project in the area is the Černovická terrace near Brno, where CTP purchased part of land from the city last year.
